REASONS FOR ALLOWANCE

1. The following is an examiner's statement of reasons for allowance: The prior art made of record in the attached form PTO-892 considered to be pertinent to the submitted application.

Kloesters US # 6,246,195, teaches in abstract an apparatus for lowering a power window, wherein the system slacks are determined in operating device of the window and then system slacks are eliminated in the lowering direction of the window by corresponding control of operational device.

In Fig. 3 Kloesters discloses a door 1 that is provided with window 2 to be lowered by operating device 3. In the locked condition of the vehicle the upper edge 5 of the window is in position P, shown in Fig. 2. Position R shows the window in the recess 6 without any bracing. The path difference between positions P and R is small and is a result of deformation of the seal 7. Position Q corresponds approximately to position P, but with less prestressing that is applied in position P, (see column 3, lines 38-62).

In the Fig. 3, in positions P, Q and S the operating device 3 is in movement in the direction of lifting the window 2.

In Fig. 4 the system slacks are determined in initiating step, which result from mechanical tolerances of the operating device. At an arbitrary point in time, in step 11, window is completely lifted to position P. The difference between the reaching of position R and of position P is determined as a system slack and stored and corresponds to the pass of window 2 resulting from the elastic deformation of the seal 7.

Since the moving speed of the window 2 and particularly the stressing of the operating device 3 clearly changes when position R is reached it is possible to determine the system slack.

However, none of the prior art teaches or suggests in combination the sequence of:

- Energizing the motor to urge the panel toward the closed position to reduce any slack associated with coupling between the motor and panel;
- Determining the initialization position when there is no slack.

Any comments considered necessary by applicant must be submitted no later than the payment of the issue fee and, to avoid processing delays, should preferably accompany the issue fee. Such submissions should be clearly labeled "Comments on Statement of Reasons for Allowance."
